FARLEY URGED TO CONTINUE AS CHAIRMAN

Big Jim Believed Wavering In Attitude Toward Managership.

'ALWAYS A DEMOCRAT'

Murray Charges Willkie's Utility Violating Wagner Act.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO — Tremendous pressure was brought to bear upon James A. Farley today to continue for a time as chairman of the Democratic national committee, regardless of next week's convention's choice of a presidential nominee.

As the crowds assembled for the big party meeting—virtually certain to renominate the president, Farley's old New York associates urged him to carry one step farther his declaration of yesterday that he would not "take a walk" if President Roosevelt runs again. And, they reported that he was wavering.

A candidate himself, Farley, who directed the president's 1932 and 1936 campaigns, has long been an opponent of the third term movement. Moreover, he is one of the very few of the many politicians in Chicago who knows just what Mr. Roosevelt's plans are.

The leaders of the third term movement regarded Farley's statement of yesterday as at least a partial victory in their effort to persuade him to direct the 1940 Roosevelt campaign through its early stages, at least. His pronouncement came at the one serious moment in a press conference devoted otherwise to wise-cracking and laughter. A reporter asked whether Farley would "take a walk" if Mr. Roosevelt were renominated.

His mood suddenly changed to one of intense earnestness as he answered:

"Everybody who knows anything about me knows that Jim Farley is a Democrat."

As Farley's associates awaited his decision, the convention machinery turned steadily, with the resolutions committee continuing its hearings prior to the adoption of a platform surely approving New Deal policy on both foreign and domestic questions. Today's principal witnesses were Edward A. O'Neal of the American Farm Bureau Federation and Miss Josephine Roche, former assistant secretary of the treasury, speak-

DOWN TO 45

It Was Chilly Last Night But Colder Just a Year Ago.

It was pretty chilly last night for July, with the temperature dropping to 45 degrees, but it was three degrees colder last July, the weatherman pointed out today.

And not only that, there have been readings in the 40's in 11 of the last 15 Julys, Weather Observer Otto Sprunger said.

Last night's chilly reading dropped the 24-hour average temperature to 56.5 degrees, which is 16 degrees below normal. The noon reading today was 70, two degrees warmer than yesterday's high.

It will be fair and continued cool tonight but warmer weather is due to return Sunday and it will be considerably warmer Monday, the weatherman said.

Citizens' Committee Submits Widespread Traffic, Parking Plan

Parking Meters, Street Widening and New Parking Restrictions Urged By Group to Relieve Congestion In City; Officials 'Impressed.'

Submitting a final report on Mansfield's traffic problem after weeks of surveys and study, the Citizens committee on traffic last night turned over to Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton and Police Chief Meade K. Bates a program which included installation of parking meters, widening certain streets, restricting parking to one side of the street on certain streets, a separate traffic division in the police department and steps that can be taken to relieve traffic congestion.

Fifty-five citizens, under the leadership of Lewis Hartman, have worked on the survey for months, in sub-committee groups. Working with them was city council's traffic committee which was set up at the first of the year. On the council committee and working with Hartman's group, were Arthur Croak, chairman, Russell Porch, C. N. Shultz and Lester Hunter.

Crafton and Bates were both "impressed" with the report. Crafton said it was comprehensive, simple and logical, while Bates said he was fully in accord with all of its recommendations and that every point seemed logical to him. Both praised Hartman and his groups, all of whom worked for weeks on it.

The report covers eight major phases of the city's traffic problem. They are:

1. A street widening program.
2. Limitation of parking.
3. Removing alley obstructions.
4. Future development
5. Loading and unloading
6. Traffic congestion.
7. Education and enforcement.
8. Rerouting

* * * * *

Would Widen Walnut Street Six Feet

The street widening program includes recommendations to add six feet to the width of Walnut street between Marshall avenue (just south of the City building) to West Fourth, by taking three feet from sidewalks on both sides of the street. This would still leave sufficient sidewalk room and would relieve congestion on what the committee terms the "most congested street in the downtown district."

It is further recommended that the sidewalks on the north and south side of Central park be rebuilt just inside the present walks, which will add nine and a half feet to both North and South Park streets; and to widen Lexington avenue, a main artery of the city's traffic by three feet on each side. Until this can be done, parking should be restricted to one side of the street.

Other streets proposed for widening are Third and Fourth streets between Franklin and Mulberry streets, Mulberry between First and Fourth, and Fifth between Wayne and Main streets.

* * * * *

Parking Meters Best to Solve Problem

Parking, one of the admittedly "toughest knots" in the entire traffic problem, brings an unconditional recommendation from the committee for the installation of parking meters, which it contends, would do more to relieve the parking situation than any other plan. Meters would also help correct other phases of the problem, as well as bring in much added revenue to meet still other traffic problems, the committee said.

The committee recommended that city council take action by ordinance or empower the safety director to establish one-side parking on all state highways through the city and on residential streets that are less than 30 feet wide. Such streets as Helen avenue, Sycamore street, Flint and Wood streets were mentioned. Mulberry street, between First street and the viaduct and also at the south end of the viaduct, should be restricted to one side parking.

The sub-committee on alley obstructions recommended that stairways, recesses for cellar windows could be removed, thus expediting the movement of traffic and the unloading of trucks.

* * * * *

Suggests Rowland Avenue Viaduct

On point four, future development, the committee report dealt with action in the future which would greatly aid in solving the city's traffic problem.

Rowland avenue, it was pointed out, could be extended north with a viaduct over the B. and O. and the Erie railroads, connecting the south and north sides of the city at a point west of Bowman and relieving congestion on Bowman street.

It was recommended that a new highway from the down town district to the southwestern part of the city be considered. The course of Ritter's Run was suggested as a highway location, starting at First and Main streets and going through Woodland to rejoin route 42.

On loading and unloading the committee reported that parking meters were obviously the only immediate solution. The meters would do away with the all day parkers and make parking space available to motorists and to truckmen all day. It would do away with double parking, especially by trucks.

Recommendations for relieving traffic congestion were based on seven important points: 1—Traffic officers around the square at all busy times; 2—Industrial heads work out a plan to stagger their quitting time in order to relieve the congestion between 4:30 and 5 p. m.; 3—Larger one-way traffic markers around Central park;

President Needs Congress Approval on Calling Guard

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — President Roosevelt needed only congressional authority today to mobilize 50,000 national guardsmen as a preliminary step to a compulsory military training program that would put nearly 2,000,000 men under arms by October, 1941.

The approval is expected to be granted soon after congress reconvenes nine days hence.

Plans for the unprecedented mobilization of the national guard were revealed by White House Secretary Stephen T. Early who said that four divisions and seven anti-aircraft regiments would be ordered into extended training "as soon as possible."

The length of the training period was not revealed but the war department advocates one year. The guardsmen would receive army base pay—$21 a month for privates. The disruption of family life is avoided by virtue of a war department order recently issued permitting enlisted men with dependents to resign. What provision will be made to return the men to their jobs after their training was not known. Presumably employers will be asked to hold

POLICE BLAME 'THEFT RING' IN 18 BURGLARIES

Intensify Efforts to Trace Burglars After Lootings In East Mansfield.

TAKE RADIO FROM STORE

Thieves Smash Show Window to Get Loot: Housewives Cautioned by Chief.

With 18 burglaries reported in the Mansfield area in the past 15 days, police and Sheriff E. P. Long intensified their efforts today to track down the gang of thieves which authorities believe has been responsible for most of them.

Sheriff Long said his deputies joined the search today after nearly $100 worth of merchandise was stolen from the Cates Auto Wrecking company and Long's filling station in East Mansfield.

Six tires were stolen from the auto wrecking company, while the loot in the filling station burglary included nine gallons of gasoline, two quarts of oil, a quantity of cigars and candy, and some neckties. The thieves gained entrance to both places by breaking windows.

Police said a radio valued at $30 was stolen from the Bell Music store last night after a show window was broken. Fifteen of the 17 burglary cases have been in the city.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said Mansfield residents can help protect themselves from losses by keeping their windows and screens locked at night and investigating unusual noises that might be made by intruders.

He urged housewives to lock the doors of their house if they plan to work outside the house or in the basement for any length of time.

"In too many homes the front door is left open while there is no one downstairs in the house and a sneak thief can walk in and take what he wants," Chief Bates said.

The chief said the same gang of thieves probably has been involved in most of the burglaries and he was convinced that they are grown-ups and not boys.

"Of course, where some one has walked into a home and carred away articles or money during the day, it could be boys just as well as experienced burglars," he added.

In most of the breaking and entering cases, the thieves entered the homes by prying windows open or removing window glass. Officers have obtained finger prints from some of the windows, but so far they have not rounded up any suspects.

78 'WHOOPING'

Health Commissioner Reports Disease High in City.

Reporting 78 cases of whooping cough in Mansfield, Dr. R. C. Rehder, city health commissioner, today urged parents to watch their children for symptoms of the disease and segregate them.

While there is no threat of an epidemic, the number of cases is unusually high, Dr. Rehder said and precaution should be taken to segregate children with symptoms from other children.

The symptoms, he said, start with colds and a slight cough with a slight temperature. These, he said, may leave and the cough continue. It takes from ten days to two weeks, he said, for a case to reach the "whooping" stage.

Every case must be reported to the health department he pointed out, and the earlier it is reported the less danger there is of communicating it to other children.

TWO KILLED

Auto Fails To Make Curve, Hits Bridge Abutment.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Two persons were killed today when an automobile failed to make a curve and crashed into the stone abutment of a railroad bridge.

The dead were Mrs. Edna Justice Luzader, 18-year-old mother, and Charles Johnson, 22, Howard W. Elias, 20, driver of the car was injured seriously.

Lash Away In Land, Sea and Air Attacks

German Aerial Forays Against Britain Used to 'Soften Up' Foe for Later Blitzkrieg; Rumania Threatens Turkey on Allied Tie-Up.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—German aerial raids on the British Isles appeared to have slackened today. Official sources believed the Germans were checking up data gathered in six days of intensified bombardment and reconnaissance.

(By Associated Press)

The Italian high command claimed notable successes as Britain and Italy lashed away at each other on land, sea and in the air today in their fight for control of the Mediterranean and supremacy in Africa.

A naval engagement that started in the Mediterranean five days ago still is going on, the Italian command said, with Italy's bombers peppering British ships with bombs. They scored hits on a battleship and two cruisers yesterday, said the communique.

Italian forces which since Wednesday's dawn have been besieging Moyale, British fortified post on the Kenya-Ethiopian frontier, have taken a village near the town, the Italian command said.

That Britain was getting in her licks, too, was acknowledged by the Italian command in the announcement that an Italian destroyer had been lost "by enemy bombardment."

The German high command, meantime, said its sea war on Britain had been marked by the capture of a number of mechantmen with "valuable cargoes" and the sinking of 24,674 more tons of "enemy cargo space."

In the topsy-turvey Balkans a major development was the report that Rumania, cleaving more and more to the Rome-Berlin axis, would withdraw from the Balkan entente unless Turkey turns out her officials who engineered alliance with Britain and France.

The new Rumanian totalitarian regime went ahead with its work of shaping the country to Rome-Berlin wishes. One of the new anti-Semitic decrees took wives of Jews out of government positions, thousands of farm workers and industrial technicians were demobilized—to leave the army and return to productive civilian jobs.

The unbroken pattern of German air attack on Britain—intensive bombing raids and an attempted "starvation blockade"

ORGANIZE: France Moves to Protect All Coastal Points

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—More than 17,000 political arrests already have been made in German-occupied French territory, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch reported today.

(By International News Service)

VICHY, France—France's new totalitarian government moved swiftly today to protect French seaports on the Atlantic and Mediterranean coasts and in North Africa.

All French ports from the mouth of the Seine river to the Spanish coast, on the Mediterranean sea and in North Africa were placed under supreme command of Admiral Darlan, whose appointment as French secretary of state for the navy was announced by Chef of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain.

This action closely followed an address by Petain bitterly criticizing Britain for attacking the French fleet at Oran, Algeria.

Earlier Petain named his totalitarian cabinet and appointed Vice Premier Pierre Laval as his political heir and successor in the event Petain is "prevented from exercising his functions.

General Maxime Weygand was named defense minister, Paul Baudouin foreign minister and Adrien Marquet, former mayor of Bordeaux, interior minister. Laval retained the post of vice premier while Armand Boutilier

TREASON: Rumanians Charge Turks Broke Faith In Treaty

BULLETIN

BUCHAREST—(AP)—Demobilization of the Rumanian army, estimated at a war strength of about 1,400,000 men, has begun, the general staff said in a communique today.

(By Associated Press)

BUCHAREST—Rumania was reported authoritatively today to be ready to sever her Balkan entente ties with Turkey unless officials responsible for Turkey's mutual assistance pact with Britain and France are replaced.

The German legation here told King Carol's government that the latest Berlin white book "proves conclusively" that Turkey planned with the Allies for an attack on Rumanian as well as Soviet oil fields.

The government censor approved an editorial in Bucharest's German language newspaper Tageblat charging Turkey with "treason" to the Balkan entente, consisting of Turkey, Rumania, Greece and Yugo-Slavia, by "conspiring against the sovereignty and integrity" of Rumania.

In German circles here it was reported that Gen. Ion Antonescu, leader of the pro-Nazi iron guard, still is in prison.

The Rumanian general staff today ordered farm workers and industrial technical experts demobilized, beginning tomorrow. The number to be sent back to their civilian jobs was not given, but it includes both officers and men.

Patriotism — How Mansfield's Showing It

Mansfielders are putting a new ending and a new punch in the line that many a typist has pounded out thousands of times in learning to operate a typewriter. They are reading it:

"Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country!"

They are illustrating it with flags and banners and in the kind of books they take from the library. Olive Gresmer tells you all about it in the Sunday edition of The News-Journal.

Campers, Ho!

And while older residents of the city think of defending their country, their children are trekking to camps to make themselves sturdier citizens. Robert Flohr and Jane Williams join The News-Journal photographer in taking you on a visit to Camp Avery Hand Jr. and Camp Tupelo where Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are having fun with a purpose.

Work, Politics, and a Water-Hating Duck!

Just what CCC workers are doing in this area is presented in pictures and a story by Virgil A. Stanfield.

Subbing for Robert E. Rogers, who is on vacation, Ken Woodman reveals how county Democratic leaders are plucking a silver lining out of the Willkie cyclone.

Fashions and hair-do's of 60 years ago are presented in one of the photographs which illustrate the story of two Mansfielders who will celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary tomorrow.

Report 35,000,000 Europeans Face Actual Starvation

CRUMBS FROM GERMAN TABLE FEEDING REST

Famine Appears Certain In Poland Next Winter, Officials Say.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — War-ridden Europe today confronted two winters of hunger, with 35,000,000 facing actual starvation and some 70,000,000 others depending on the "crumbs" falling from Germany's table.

In addition, according to reports reaching Washington, approximately 150,000,000 face rationing of food that ultimately may wreak a costly toll on the aged and young, since the armies of the axis-powers get first call on food supplies.

Conditions in Poland were already reported to be appalling. Hunger is rampant, and officials of the foreign bureau of the U. S. department of commerce said that they hated to think of the coming winter.

These officials declared that food supplies in Poland, with a population of 35,000,000 were greatly inadequate. Louis Domaretsky, the bureau's chief economic analyst, said:

"We may never know the tragic toll that is taken during the coming winter in Poland. Part of the country is held by Germany, part by Russia and food supplies are known to be insufficient for the native population. But no definite reports of conditions are allowed to reach the outer world and if famine results, the true story may never be told."

The 69,000,000 people in Finland, Holland, Denmark, Belgium and France will be forced, it was said, to depend on Germany—even for the crops grown in those countries. Italy's 45,000,000 also will face hunger unless Germany, her axis partner, ships food supplies into that country.

Germany was reported to have sufficient stores to last through the winter, but is lacking in meat reserves. It was said that the Nazis were forcing the low countries to slaughter their livestock to make up for the meat deficiencies in Germany.

Russia was also said to have enough for her own people; but just enough. England, though on a severe rationing basis with four meatless days a week, was not expected to suffer unduly if she can keep control of the seas.

Agriculture department experts believed that Germany had enough food to last through the 1940 winter, but was gambling on a victory then. These same experts expressed belief that Europe, with the exception of Poland, might stagger through the coming winter with hunger but not actual famine. But if the war continues until next year, the winter of 1941 will be appalling, they believe.

An agriculture department bulletin said European crops now were in poor condition because of "delayed fall-seeding operations, a very severe winter with above-average winter-kill damage, a late spring and the loss of laborers resulting from military activities."

Find 'Santa Claus' of Hocking Hills Dead Near Logan

LOGAN (INS)—Discovery of the body of Conrad H. Reichley, 77-year-old "Santa Claus" of the Hocking Hills at the base of a rock cliff, led officials today to express the theory that his death had been accidental.

Seek Fiend Who Started Institution Fire

Up and Down the Street

Although the Mansfield public schools are closed for the annual summer vacation, Fred E. Elder, biology teacher at Senior high school, is probably every bit as busy as he would be if classes were in session. Elder is one of the numerous Mansfielders attending summer classes at Ohio State university, and when not attending school he spends his spare time serving as instructor in nature study and photography at the Boy Scout summer camp at Camp Avery Hand.

"Pete" Martin of the Buckeye bakery is about to defend his claims of being, and he says this modestly, "one of the better" horseshoe pitchers in Ohio. Martin has been challenged to a match by Julius Weber who also tosses a mean shoe. Martin will have Joe Michael as his partner and Weber has selected Ed Burghardt as his. The game will be played right on West Fourth street in front of the Buckeye bakery at 8 p. m. Monday, Martin said. It's been a long time since horseshoes were played on one of Mansfield's busiest down town streets, but the block is closed off, the brick paving up and the game will be played as though it were a country road.

It doesn't pay to get tough with police over traffic tickets issued. Charles Felix, 230 Lida street, found that out last night when he went to police station to protest two different tickets on his car. The first ticket was issued by Patrolman Howard Schuck at 11:18 for parking in a restricted zone. The second ticket, issued by Patrolman Clare Kyler, was more than an hour later when he found the car in the same place. Felix tore up one of the tickets and stormed up to police station to give them a piece of his mind. But he did it so loudly and so profanely that he was arrested for disorderly conduct. So in addition to paying for his two traffic tickets, he also had to pay a fine of $5 and costs this morning in municipal court.

Hearing a big argument this morning in the cell block at the county jail, Deputy Sheriff Glenn P. Freeman investigated and found it all started when one of the inmates refused to do his share of the "housecleaning." Freeman advised a "kangaroo court" session to settle it. "We'll stand by the decision of your judge," he told them. In a little while the "judge" announced he had ordered the shirker to do all the unpleasant jobs for the next five days and he was going to see that the order was enforced. The "kangaroo court" is a system that gives the inmates a chance to try their own cases and settle disputes.

PLEAD TODAY IN TRAFFIC DEATH

Mansfielder To Be Arraigned In Columbus on Charges of Manslaughter.

In what Columbus police described as an "unusual case," Doyle Minard, 34, Mansfield, and Edgar Renick, 27, of Worthington were to be arraigned today in Columbus on second degree manslaughter charges growing out of the hit-skip death of Charles L. Matheny, 74, on a Columbus street two days ago.

Minard, who admitted driving the car which struck the aged man, told police he kept on driving after the accident because Renick said, "we'd better get away from here."

Police filed the charge against Renick on the basis that Minard drove away under his orders. Officers said Renick admitted he suggested leaving the accident scene without investigating to learn who had been hit.

"I felt my car hit something and asked Renick what it was," Minard told police. "He said I had hit an old man with a cane and had hit him hard and that I had better beat it."

A joint affidavit naming the two men was filed after Dr. Edward E. Smith, Franklin county coroner, and Assistant Prosecutor T. Vincent Martin conducted an inquest. Both Minard and Renick were held in the Columbus city jail pending arraignment.

Minard was taken into custody at a hotel several hours after the accident after police traced him through his auto license number. Renick, who lives in a Columbus suburb, was arrested later.

VOLCANO ON JAPANESE ISLAND REPORTED ERUPTING VIOLENTLY

TOKYO—(U.P.)—Mount Yuzan, on the island of Miyake, quiet since 1874, was in violent eruption today and the sea floor of the island was belching flames at several points.

The correspondent of the newspaper Asahi reported that 50 were killed and 50 others were missing in the village of Kamitsuki on the island, which is 110 miles south of Tokyo and 30 miles east of the mainland.

Residents of the village of Kamitsuki sought refuge at the nearby island of Izu.

The correspondent described the island, one of a string of seven as a "sea of flames." The hot lava pouring into the sea, the flames shooting out from the sea floor and the heavy clouds of black smoke over the island created a frightening scene, he said.

The navy dispatched the destroyer Okishima and a mine sweeper, both carrying provisions and medical supplies, and a passenger steamer to the island. Seven doctors and nurses and 30 policemen were aboard the steamer.

The steamer Daifuku Maru, en route to Tokyo from Osaka, radioed she was en route to the island and would arrive this afternoon.

FIGHTS ORDER

Weirton Steel to Contest NLRB Ruling 'to Limit.'

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—The Weirton Steel company today planned to "contest to the limit" a National Labor Relations Board order accusing it of "flagrant violation of the Wagner labor act.

T. E. Millsop, president of the $125,000,000 concern, said the ruling would be appealed to the courts because "the company is convinced the board, by its conduct of the hearing, disqualified itself from rendering an impartial decision."

He called the NLRB decision in the four-year-old case "about 99 per cent invective and 1 per cent substance."

After a bitterly contested hearing, the board yesterday ordered the company to disestablish independent unions at two plants and reinstate with back pay 17 of 300 employes who claimed they were dismissed for union activity.

FLAMES TAKE SIXTH VICTIM FRIDAY NIGHT

Prowlers Reported at Home Recently; 30 Rescued From Holocaust.

CINCINNATI—The state fire marshal's office today launched a search for a suspected incendiarist in connection with the fire which killed six women residents of the Holy Family home unit of St. Francis hospital and caused $50,000 property damage.

The toll mounted to six last night with the death of Mrs. Theresa Burkhart, 70, of Cleveland, who suffered from suffocation and shock when trapped with other women on the third floor and in the attic of the blazing building.

The investigation of the holocaust, called Cincinnati's worst institutional fire in more than 30 years, was started by Fire Marshal Louis Schraffenberger after hospital attaches revealed that the institution had been troubled by prowlers recently.

Flames which the fire marshal said started in a basement store room, blocked stairways and front exits before Mrs. Josephine Boklo, a veteran employe of the institution, was awakened by smoke which filled her third-floor room.

Besides the dead, seven others, including two policemen on rescue duty, were injured. Thirty other inmates were rescued by firemen by use of ropes lowered from windows after iron fire escapes glowed white-hot from the terrific heat.

The dead: Mrs. Burkhart, Regina Nickamp, 45, Chickasaw, O., Minnie Brandhoff, Hamilton; Mary Rose Watkins, 35, Mary Theders, 57, and Rosealine Burns, 41, all of Cincinnati.

She was a member of the First Lutheran church, the Pride Council of No. 46, Sons and Daughters of Liberty and was the oldest member of the W. B. A. Pioneer club of Mansfield.

Surviving are two sons, Murray J. Blair of Oak Park, Ill., and Clyde J. Blair of Mansfield; two daughters, Mrs. Minnie Nunmaker of Mansfield and Mrs. Brunner of Canton, and three grandchildren, Frances Nunmaker and Clifford and Paul Blair of Mansfield. Not That It Matters

The Fate of France, Local 'Political Dynamite' and Profane Ladies Discussed

—By JANE WILLIAMS

IT IS being pretty generally agreed by well informed observers and students of world affairs that the battle of France was lost because the fighting spirit had gone of the French people and soldiers; that their patriotism and passionate love of their soil and their cities had been undermined by political corruption for many years.

They point out that the common French people were torn between too many conflicting political parties, labor factions, constantly changing regimes (which always stayed the same no matter how many times they changed) and out and out corruption in high places; that the people had come to the dangerous what's-the-use philosophy with regards to their future, and that their leaders were all self-seeking.

The fault then, was not with democracy, but with the people and their leaders. Democracy with its privileges isn't something that is handed to a people on a silver platter. It isn't something to be administered by an elected few, but to be participated in by all the people.

FOR more than a thousand years France has struggled upward, sometimes through blood-drenched eras; but always the spirit of her liberty-loving people, her traditions and the romance that was a very part of her, have held the admiration of the world.

But a few years of political ineptitude and scandals, of impotent leaders have done for France what a thousand years of vicissitudes could not do—they have reduced her to virtual slavery and belittled her in the eyes of the world.

The passing of this romantic and chivalrous people as a nation holds—or should hold—a stern lesson for us. What happened in France can happen here.

American citizens who shrug at corruption in high places, who place self-gain above political honesty and national soundness, constitute a menace that is as potent, and far more disgraceful, than any Fifth Column.

A MANSFIELD property owner called a city official this week to remind him that any attempt to enforce the city law regarding roof water drained into sanitary sewers, has always been considered "political dynamite."

Political dynamite often turns out to be a dud and fails to explode. There may have been years when the officials who attempted to enforce this particular law would have brought the wrath of property owners onto their political necks. But not this year, when cellars have been flooded with back-wash sewage.

The question of public health outweighs any political import the problem may have and the majority of property owners will cooperate with city officials by diverting their roof waters from sanitary sewers into storm sewers. After a few months the property owner who refuses to make the change may not only have city officials on his neck, but his neighbors may greet him with: "So you're one of those birds who are willing to dump sewage into my cellar."

Co-operating with officials on this is not only a matter of obeying a law and consideration for a neighbor; it a matter of protecting the health of yourself and your family.

THERE ensued a violent argument between Your Correspondent and a group of city officials this week anent the Profane Lady who socked the baseball umpire at the Fairgrounds because she didn't like his decisions. Without in any way going into the merits or demerits of his decisions, I said—mildly—I thought the umpire should have clouted the lady right back, but hard.

The arguers held up their hands in holy horror. "The sight of a man striking a woman is uncivilized," they said. "it isn't done. Besides it would be greater punishment, greater humiliation for her, to hale her into court on an assault and battery charge."

It isn't uncivilized. It is done. It would not be greater humiliation. The man who has a woman arrested for assault and battery is apt to look like a sissie.

Men are still chivalrous—and dumb.

The frenzied Nazi press was not satisfied, on Hitler's triumphant return to Berlin from the wars, to liken him only to Napoleon. They hailed him as a modern Napoleon AND a Caesar. Wasn't Caesar the bucko who got a knife between his ribs from his best friends?

History has a way of repeating itself—we hope.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—One of the ways Hollywood may lower its picture budgets to meet foreign revenue losses is in the use of lesser known, less expensive but promising support for its stars.

The lumping of three or four big names in a single picture (see "Boom Town" with Gable, Tracy, Colbert, Lamarr) would be extremely rare if not abandoned. Instead would be pictures boasting two or even one top name, the lesser roles being taken by newcomers who thus would have more opportunity to "crash" than ever before. . . . The newcomers, as always, would have to demonstrate their capacities before making important strides. But they are getting their chances, as witness: Lana Turner, Mary Beth Hughes, Linda Darnell, Carole Landis, Alan Curtis—all prospects for eventual stardom, all getting lead roles even now. . . .

Astaire's nimble soles will click again in "Second Chorus" (for Paramount release) before they're returned to Metro. . . . This is the movie in which Artie Shaw, the band leader plays a band leader. . . .

When you see "All This, and Heaven Too" you'll understand why they think of Ann Todd for the vacated Temple assignments. . . . She's not the least like Shirley—except in freshness and prettiness. . . .

Paramount's projected new Westwood studio, on which they're still planning despite the war and retrenchment, ought to have a youthful outlook. William L. Pereira, the architect, is only 30. . . . Among the new cartoon shorts worth looking for is Schlesinger's "Circus Today," satirical in treatment of the big top, with some good gags and only one sour old one (the stork and Cantor) in the lot. . . . Same outfit has an amusing novelty in "You Ought to Be in Pictures," in which Porky Pig is persuaded by Daffy Duck to try features. . . . For the first time in years real sets and people are combined with drawings, in the manner of the cartoon-pioneering "Out of the Ink Wells" series. . . . Harman-Ising's "Home on the Range", the adventure of a little calf with a big bad wolf, has a Disneyish charm and simplicity. . .

If Nelson Eddy keeps on improving as he does in "The New Moon" in the acting department I mean—I'll have to take back a few remarks I've made on the subject. . . . "The Refugees," with John Wayne, Sigrid Gurie, Charles Coburn, is excellent movie stuff. . . . The title characters (Gurie and Coburn) have it laid on a bit thick, though—fleeing from Europe, they hardly settle in a Dust Bowl community before they're faced with a "Grapes of Wrath" flight. . . . "Anne of Windy Poplars" (Anne Shirley) shows that Anne the heroine and Anne the actress have both increased in charm from their "Green Gables" days. . . . And Hollywood ought to keep that Louise Campbell in these parts instead of letting her get away for summer stock again. . . . Joe E. Brown is another who's bound for the straw-hat country when he finishes "So You Won't Talk." . . .

BRITISH AND ITALY AFTER SEA CONTROL

Five-Day Naval Engagement In Mediterranean Still Continuing.

left the world wondering when the "real" onslaught will come, but only Adolf Hitler knows the answer, and he is not telling.

However, Louis P. Lochner, Associated Press bureau chief in Berlin, pointed out that the blitzkrieg against Britain would come only when Hitler has convinced himself that the ground is thoroughly prepared, and that the Fuehrer would not mind waiting if he found it necessary.

Germans, Lochner reported, describe the present air war against Britain as mere "child's play" in comparison with what is yet to come, and they are so confident of victory that the are moving thousands of troops eastward—away from England.

Raids on England, Scotland and Wales again yesterday and last night, the sixth successive day of heavy assault, cost the Germans 11 bombers, the British said, and killed at least 10 civilians. No full statement of casualties and damage was given, however.

British fliers hit back with bomb and machine-gun attacks on the French coast, airdromes in The Netherlands, and objectives in Germany itself.

While the aerial war continued its blasting course, Nazi-conquered France added the trimmings to her new totalitarian cloak. Albert LeBrun, last president of the third republic, and the old cabinet of ministers resigned.

Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, French chief of state at the age of 84, named a council of 12 full ministers and three defense secretaries to help him rule. In a decree employing the royal pronoun, "We," Petain designated Vice Premier Pierre Laval as his eventual successor.

Laval, 57, is a long-time rightist and "appeaser," known as a friend of dictators.

There was a hint of troubles ahead for the new government, however.

A delayed dispatch from German-occupied Paris said hostility had developed in political circles and the press to the alteration of the government under Petain. The press expressed suspicion of "persons responsible for the past" being able to direct the future.

Great Britain apparently was hopeful of placating Japan by compromising the Japanese demand that the Burma road to China be closed.

Reliable persons in Tokyo said the British had agreed to permit shipment of no more war supplies over the road, but would continue to allow foodstuffs. In London, it was said that the British would offer to close the road for two months—during the rainy season, when it is not much good anyhow—pending a settlement with Japan.

In the United States, President Roosevelt and Secretary of War Stimson decided to call about 50,000 national guardsmen as soon as possible for possibly a year's intensive training. Congressional approval is necessary. Anti-aircraft and harbor defense regiments would be included.

SECT MEMBERS HELD PRISONERS

Crowd Demands They Salute Flag at Gibsonburg Meeting.

FREMONT —(U.P.)— A group of 16 members of Jehovah's Witnesses were escorted safely to their automobiles early today after being held prisoners for six hours in their meeting hall at nearby Gibsonburg.

Earlier the members of the religious cult were met by a crowd of 400 townspeople who demanded they salute the American flag when the witnesses first attempted to leave the hall around 9 o'clock last night.

Upon advise of Mayor John W. Henline of Gibsonburg, the witnesses returned to their hall and stayed there under watch of sheriff's deputies until the crowd outside dispersed, around 3 a. m.

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Twelve crew members of the Dutch freighter Prins Willem II who refused to sail under their captain's orders were brought here today under heavy guard and imprisoned in the immigration detention building, pending deportation proceedings.

They arrived in a bus followed by a border patrol car carrying two armed guards.

Citizens' Committee Urges Widespread Traffic Changes

5—The stanchions around Central park be removed and overhead lights be substituted; 6—That in the future, consideration be given side lights on poles; and 7— That if and when any changes are made in lights or rerouting, an expert first be employed to study the problem.

* * * * *

Favors Police Traffic Department

The sub-committee on education and enforcement pointed out that any success in working out traffic problems depends upon enough officers to enforce existing regulations.

It was recommended that a separate traffic department be set up within the police department, made up of not less than six men and headed by a specialist in traffic. Their primary job would be enforcement but at the same time they would be responsible for the traffic welfare of the city. The additional men could be financed from the parking meter funds, and this consideration alone, the committee believes, is sufficient justification for urging that meters be given a trial.

It was recommended that city council make it compulsory for drivers to report accidents to the police department, so that the traffic department could make a survey of the major causes of accidents at specific places, and remedy them. An educational campaign for both drivers and pedestrians is recommended.

On the rerouting of trucks, it was suggested that all traffic on route 42 proceed as at present specified by city ordinance, with additional signs erected at Park avenue and Hedges street and at First and Main, pointing the direction of the business district.

* * * * *

Asks Through Streets, 1-Side Parking

Suggestions were made to have portions of Hedges and First streets as traversed by route 42, made into through streets with the erection of stop signs at the several intersections, and limiting parking to one side of the streets; to indicate by signs a short cut on route 42 by way of East Fourth street to route 30N; that no change be made in route 30S; and that route 39 enter the city on Park avenue east, to Adams street and north to Sixth street, thence on Sixth to Mulberry and north on Mulberry to Springmill.

It was recommended that no change be made in traffic on route 13 passing through the city, except that the northbound traffic be diverted so that it need not go around three sides of Central park.

The committee pointed out the fact that parking meters can be installed on trial in the city without cost to the city, and strongly urged that this be done.

Crafton said that the report, which represents the thoughts of both the Citizens committee and the city council's committee on traffic, would be presented to city council as a whole for consideration at its next meeting.

was appointed finance minister.

Other cabinet ministers appointed were: Jean Albert, justice; Emile Mireaux, education and fine arts; Jean Ybarnegary, youth and family; Pierre Gaziot, agriculture and supplies; Francois Pietri, communications and Henry Lemery, colonies.

Three secretaries of state for the armed forces were named: General Leon Colson, army, Admiral Jan Darlan, navy, and General Maurice Pujo, aviation.

The cabinet will be completed with a minister of production and labor, to be announced later.

(British and Swiss dispatches indicated Laval, Weygand and Marquet form the "triumvirate" that actually will rule France, with Petain nominal chief because of his advanced years—he is 84 and has tremendous prestige as "hero of Verdun." Laval was described as the "strong man" of the new totalitarian regime.)

GUARD BRIDGE

New York Has More Bombing Scares for Week-End.

NEW YORK — (INS) — New York police today guarded Queensboro bridge across the East river to forestall threatened bombing of an excursion boat while brother officers were sent to New Jersey where an apparent bombing plot was unearthed early this morning.

An emergency force of detectives was ordered to the East river span when an anonymous warning was received at police headquarters that an attempt would be made to bomb an excursion boatload of Ford instrument company employes.

AAUW LAUNCHES REFUGEE PLAN

Civic Group Plans to Check Members Willing to Care For War Refugees.

First steps toward providing homes in Mansfield for British children for the duration of the war were taken yesterday by a special committee of the Mansfield chapter of the American Association of University Women.

Meeting at the home of Mrs. Merritt Giles, Crescent road, the committee decided to make a canvass of the chapter's entire membership, asking each member if she would agree to provide a home for a child of a member of the British Federation of University Women. The latter organization has appealed to the American association to provide homes for children.

Mrs. L. C. Baumgardner, chairman of the Mansfield committee, said some 20 offers had already been received from Mansfield members and nonmembers to care for the refugees.

Final arrangements are to be made through the national headquarters of AAUW.

The committee will meet at 1 p. m. Tuesday at the library for a check-up on progress of the canvass.

ing for the National Consumers League.

The committee had already heard Philip Murray, CIO spokesman, charge that Commonwealth and Southern, utilities company headed until recently by Wendell Willkie, the Republican nominee, was violating the Wagner Labor act at the time the Philadelphia convention selected him as its candidate.

The utilities issue was raised before the committee by Maurice P. Davidson, trustee of the New York State Power authority, who said that Willkie's nomination was a challenge to those who wish to "preserve what they have gained in the way of regulation of private utilities."

States voting Democratic in presidential elections will be rewarded with five delegates-at-large to future conventions under a proposal adopted yesterday by the national committee but subject to approval by next week's convention. At present the bonus is four delegates.

No change is proposed in district representation, which now is two delegates for each congressman.

The national committee also approved a resolution to prohibit smaller fractions than half votes among delegates-at-large to future conventions.

Roosevelt Shows Little Interest.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Belying his reputation for eager interest in politics, President Roosevelt today gave a good imitation of a citizen only mildly interested in the Democratic national convention and the ensuing presidential campaign.

While still reserving his decision on a third term nomination, he declared flatly yesterday that he would not go to Chicago during the convention—presumably not even to make an acceptance speech, should that problem arise.

At the same time, he indicated his summer schedule would follow a routine of alternate week-ends on the Potomac and in Hyde Park, seemingly ruling out any campaign tours.

As he prepared to start that schedule with a Potomac cruise this week-end, politicians searched his inscrutable but tantalizing remarks for eleventh-hour hints of his intentions.

Some interpreted his summer plans to mean that, if nominated, he would make a "front porch" campaign from the White House and Hyde Park, explaining to the voters that the defense emergency's demands on his time and energy precluded any speaking tours.

And almost everyone in official circles felt convinced that he would accept a "draft" nomination from the convention.

Whatever his intentions, the president did not appear to be troubled by convention or campaign prospects yesterday as he bantered gaily with reporters at his last press conference before the convention, now two days away.

FAIR ADDITION

JOEY LIKES TO RIDE AND RIDE

Police Car Passed Home Twice But He Said Nothing.

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The combination of policemen and their bright red patrol cars is irresistible for four-year-old Joey Wolf.

"You passed my house twice but I liked riding."

TOO CURIOUS

Sightseers Do More Damage Than German Bombs.

LONDON —(AP)— Sightseers are proving a worse menace to crops than German bombs in some instances, the ministry of agriculture indicated today in issuing an order making trespassers liable to a $200 fine.

"In a recent instance," the ministry said, "negligible damage was done by a bomb to a wheat field, but the entire crop of 25 acres was completely ruined by being trampled by sightseers."

The British Are Coming—But Just Little Ones

First boatload of British youngsters arrive in New York—advance guard of some 20,000 refugee children from besieged England. These arrived on the armed British liner Scythia. Although some legal difficulties remain, Americans throughout the United States have rallied to the task, offering shelter for refugee children. Several American cities are also offering shelter.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, JULY 13, 1940.

Drive carefully tomorrow—so you won't have a black and blue Monday.

"Invisible divisions," it is now explained, conquered France. They were radio trucks playing martial music.

The Ohio man who packed 14 people in his coupe, instead of being arrested, should have been turned over to a sardine factory.

Parties Without Rancor

WALTER LIPPMAN raises the question whether nations governed by two or more political parties, instead of one, "can preserve their independence and the liberties of their people." And this question rapidly narrows down to our American scene, for competitive popular government has already vanished from nearly all the rest of the world.

So far we have succeeded here, on the whole, very well, with an informal and congenial system of two parties, plus a third just competitive enough to keep the major parties reasonably alert and respectable.

Opposite and horrible examples have been seen in the two or three dozen parties that afflicted Germany before Hitler swept them up, and a rather similar multiplicity of parties which has long been the usual thing in France. It was French inability to concentrate its varied public issues in two or three strong parties which made it so weak in its recent tragic testing time.

Mr. Lippman, emphasizing that if democracy can't work here it can't work anywhere, repeats the old warning of George Washington against "partisan fury." This is, perhaps, the most important time in history to show, by moderation of party rancor, that political democracy can really work. A contest is necessary, but it should be kept within the bounds of reason and fairness.

Nations Die

FINE ARTS, literature, music, drama, and so on, have disappeared from current German life. Under the blight of Nazi rule, the rich German culture so long admired and respected by the world has surrendered to brute force and a lust for material conquest.

Instead of developing its own rich internal resources of spirit and intellect, Hitlerian Germany concentrates on profitable aggression. Any strong nation can succeed by gathering up its scattered energies and focussing them along one line. Thus, as a materialistic and military nation, Germany succeeds notably. But at what a price!

The price paid is first Germany's own soul, and second, the souls of the nations conquered by this ruthless force. As one free and fruitful nation after another goes down under the wheels of the Nazi juggernaut, its culture, science, art, philosophy and grace of life go down with it.

What we are seeing now in western Europe is the death of a great civilization. And whether it will arise again, no one knows.

Vacation Follies

PUBLIC health departments are now issuing their yearly warnings to enthusiastic vacationers. Some people know how to take a vacation and get the most out of it in recreation, health and energy. Many, however, need the repeated warning, "Take it easy!"

Severe sunburn, drowning, poison from injurious plants or insects, digestive disturbances caused by unwise eating, exhaustion from trying to crowd a year's exercise into a few days, are some of the dangers that must be guarded against.

Vacations are grand, and it is a fine thing that more and more Americans are having vacations with pay these days. But they must be handled with good sense and moderation whether they involve travel and sight-seeing or staying put in camp or cottage or resort hotel.

Debt Figures

GOVERNMENT DEBT is up but private debt is down. A report from the department of commerce indicates that, while our public debt in the United States increased by $22,000,000,000 from 1929 to 1939, debts owed by private individuals were lowered by $32,000,000,000. Thus the net indebtedness of the nation diminished by $10,000,000,000.

Unfortunately some of the reduction came through bankruptcies and foreclosures, so it wasn't all gain. But against this factor can be set the positive gain, whatever it may be, of government debt used in constructive works that may have a permanent value. So by rough reckoning, the ten billions of gain may be a fair estimate.

It's somewhat reassuring, at a time when, under the spur of rearmament, the country is called upon for billions of new expenditure.

The Shelby Way

FOR YEARS it has been part of the tradition of Shelby that it never fails to get behind a worthwhile undertaking. Community fund campaigns, Red Cross roll calls and other projects that call for contributions of money and time are handled by our smaller neighbor to the north with zest, speed and good spirit.

So no one will be much surprised at the news that it was a Shelby contribution, or a number of contributions, that put the county Red Cross over its war relief fund quota.

Other towns, groups and even individuals could learn a valuable lesson and add to their stature by following what will probably become known as "the Shelby way."

Baseball Musings

THE 32,373 persons at the All-Star baseball game in St. Louis this week probably didn't give much time to thinking about the war in Europe or preparedness in the United States. There's something about baseball that takes the fan's mind off all other troubles while he's watching his favorite sport.

Nevertheless, a detached observer inclines to the opinion that one of the things wrong with the Old World has been its inability to lose itself temporarily in a few hours of baseball madness. And possibly one of the things that may be wrong with this country is the individual citizen's reluctance to give to public affairs as much enthusiasm and concentrated attention as he gives to baseball.

Americans are an informal race that goes conventional every four years.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There is talk that the newsreel companies are going to sponge most of the realism out of their war scenes. If this is true, it means there will be relatively few views of bombed cities or crashing planes. Newsreels, therefore, will be little more than snap views of politicians, harbors, and ships. We hope this doesn't happen. Taking the "horror" out of the news gains nothing. Leaving it in frequently impresses the horror of war on a public that ought to realize as fully as possible just how horrible war can be. It seems to us that there is as little excuse for soft-pedaling actual events as there would be if the newspapers in this country soft-pedaled the news. The only censorship we need is the horse sense censorship of public opinion.

RECENTLY we wrote a piece about two inmates of San Quentin prison who had written a successful song, "I'm On the Verge of a Merge." . . . "I am writing to express my appreciation," writes John Hawkins. "The fact that you have called attention to something constructive being done in a penitentiary will be encouraging to the many other prisoners who try to do something useful with the Time On Their Hands.

"I am sorry to say that the other half of this song writing team (Dwight Claar) jumped out of the frying pan into the hospital, where he is having an operation. I am certain, however, that your story will help him forget his troubles, and that he joins me in thanking you. Sincerely, John H. Hawkins, No. 62450, San Quentin."

You're entirely welcome, John. I'm quite sure, and when you get another song published, let me know. Maybe you and Dwight can think up something appropriate with a hospital angle, like the Ether Blues, or something. Most composers transpose their personal experiences into song.—G. T.

ED SCHREIBER, of Warner Bros., tells me that the mayor of Shamrock, Tex., wrote in promising to change the name of his town to Heaven, Texas, if Warner's would agree to hold the world premiere of "All This and Heaven, Too," there. It sounds like a good idea from a chamber of commerce point of view, but what would the Irish think?

Hand-writing experts in New York say they can tell an "Interventionist" from an "Isolationist" by the way he writes the words "War" and "Peace." . . . If you are an interventionist you write the War boldly and with a flourish. . . . Peace is written in mediocre style. . . . Isolationists write "Peace" with an unconscious emphasis: "War" shows signs of nervousness. All this, of course, is poppycock. But then you can't blame a guy for trying to think up something new that will help him sell his peanuts.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, July 13, 1920.

Delegation of Mansfield Odd Fellows went to Fremont to attend 81st annual grand encampment.

Miss Georgia O'Ramey, Mansfield actress, was visiting in Paris before going to London for a two-years engagement.

Frank C. Poling went to Cincinnati to attend intercity meeting of Kiwanis clubs.

Walter S. Blair, 51, died at his home on Wood street.

L. W. Woodring was appointed record clerk at reformatory.

Construction of new village and township school building in Lucas was nearing completion.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, July 13, 1935.

Atty. Earl A. Nist was appointed supervisor of WPA in 10 counties.

Karl Seymour, 115 Penn avenue, rescued a Huron county fisherman from drowning in Lake Erie.

George Robert, 319 East Third street, was given a citation at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

Miss Dorothy Lotz of Mansfield and Carl Shauk of Ashland were married at the First Lutheran church.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On July 13, 1787, congress passed the first act providing for the government of territory outside the original thirteen colonies. The act was called "An ordinance for the government of the western territory."

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

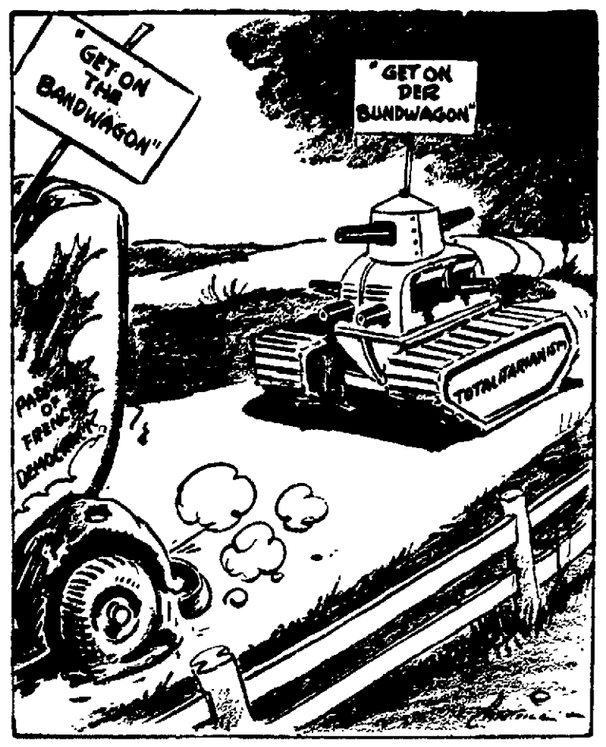
Fox "Terrier."

The familiar terrier breed of dog is noted for its courage and acuteness of smell, but particularly for its ability in hunting burrowing animals, its instinct to paw in the ground until its prey is unearthed.

It is on account of this latter propensity that it comes by its name, which is rooted in the Latin terra, earth.

Hence "fox terrier," for the specialist in hunting foxes; it will dig and dig until old master Reynard comes out of his lair.

POLITICAL PARADE IN FRANCE



U. S., Nazis In Battle of Wits

—By MORGAN M. BEATTY

WASHINGTON—Behind the Monroe Doctrine headlines you've been reading is a deliberate battle of wits between Washington and Berlin—with Washington on the offensive.

The primary aim in Washington is to bring strikingly to the attention of the American public—both above and below the Rio Grande—the original Monroe Doctrine and its championship of independence for the nations of the Western hemisphere as well as its warning to European powers to keep off.

In effect it is a curtain raiser for the meeting in Havana late in July of the 21 American republics. It might even portend a mutual Monroe Doctrine for the hemisphere to supplement the purely United States doctrine pronounced by Monroe in 1823.

American state department officials have been itching for some time to get the Monroe doctrine on Page One, so to speak, in the same breath with the strange talk of Monroe Doctrines in Europe and Asia, and to show them in contrast with each other.

These officials have been ready to leap at a chance to prove Uncle Sam is on the level and devoid of all desire to set up any puppet regimes in this hemisphere.

Almost, But Not Quite.

THE conquest of Holland almost gave them the opening they were waiting for, but not quite. For the sovereignty of Holland is obscure, her possessions in this hemisphere small.

The conquest of France was a different story, a perfect example. For, officially at any rate, France retains her independence, even though a conquered power, and therefore has the right to keep or dispose of her possessions as she sees fit.

So the state department got busy. A round-robin note went to France, England, Germany and Italy. Those nations were flatly advised that the United States would not recognize any transfers of possessions in this hemisphere, nor acquiesce in them. The Monroe Doctrine was not mentioned.

It was implied, however, that the incident at Martinique where French and British warships are playing hide and seek, is just as much in focus as, say, French Guiana.

That note was delivered in Berlin on June 18. On July 1, Berlin struck at the bait. It was Berlin that brought up the Monroe Doctrine.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German foreign minister, said the Monroe Doctrine interpretation "implicit" in the American note would amount to conferring on some European states the right to possess territories on this side of the Atlantic, but not others.

Says Mr. Hull:

THAT was what the State Department was waiting for. Secretary Hull did not even reply to the German note. Instead, through his regular press conference he addressed himself to the American public in the United States and Latin America. Others could listen, of course. Said Secretary Hull:

"The Monroe Doctrine is solely a policy of self-defense which is intended to preserve the independence and integrity of the Americans. It was, and is, designed to prevent aggression in this hemisphere on the part of any non-American power. . . ."

"It never has resembled and it does not today resemble policies which appear to be arising in other geographical areas of the world, which are alleged to be similar to the Monroe Doctrine, but which would in reality seem to be only the pretext for the carrying out of conquest by the sword."

That gave the president an opening to carry the whole theme a step further. Through Secretary Steve Early he suggested to Japan and Germany, in effect, that they apply the principles of a true Monroe Doctrine to the problems of their continents, that each nation be allowed its own voice in continental settlements.

There might be the germ of the mutual Monroe Doctrine.

The net result of all this from the American government point of view is, first, to get the original Monroe Doctrine before all the republics of this hemisphere, not as a dead document, but as a live instrument of the United States as vital today as it was in 1823. It is OUR policy, not the collective policy of the American nations. It recognizes the freedom of the American nations to handle their own affairs, and warns off foreign systems, EXCEPT for those areas where European states already held sway, such as Canada, and the Guianas. That, and nothing more.

Something New.

NEXT, it gets over the idea that the United States does not want the possessions of France in the western hemisphere, that it is willing to let the 21 American nations and their 240,000,000 people decide what should be done about them if France should try to yield them to Germany.

That is something new. It illustrates the Good Neighbor policy, even though that policy is actually no part of the original Monroe Doctrine.

It has set some insiders in Washington to talking about a mutual Monroe Doctrine, a policy adopted by all the American nations, as expressed in the recent declarations of Montivideo, Buenos Aires, Lima and Panama—all expressions of hemisphere unity and providing a common defense.

These insiders can cite you evidence that a mutual Monroe Doctrine may already be in the making. They can show you how the declarations provide that any one nation can call the rest of the nations together for consultation in case of trouble.

They show you the economic and financial advisory committee already set up to plan economic resistance against foreign systems.

Listen, World!

Realize Your Own Importance.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

REMEMBER that old saying: "lower than a snake's belly?" That's how you feel many a time these days, isn't it? All these tremendous events avalanching around you, changing the face and spirit of the world, while you stay stuck in the same old rut, doing the same old chores which you did ten or 20 years ago.

I know that feeling, too. Sitting here at the same old typewriter, juggling the same old words. Felt it also in the long years when I stood above a kitchen stove, turning to hush an ailing little lad . . . or worked in the desert, washing miners' overalls, cooking miners' chuck, pushing a muckers' wheelbarrow in the sour, underground darkness.

It comes to us all, inevitably—that feeling we don't count. Comes as surely when you're rich and famous as when you're poor and obscure . . . even to that One who hung upon a cross, vindicating His faith, paying for the sins of the world, that feeling came—and broke forth in that immortal wail which bursts in its time from every heart:

"My God! My God! Why hast thou forsaken me?"

Forsaken . . . forgotten . . . so insignificant we cannot rate in the dramatic scheme of things . . . that's how we all feel, sooner or later, whether we sit on a throne or a broken-backed kitchen chair. But it isn't true!

You're not forgotten or forsaken. You're not insignificant!

You're a vital part of civilization. You and your job are civilization . . . for without them, civilization would totter and die.

"But my job doesn't amount to anything," you say. "Nothing smart or exciting, nothing colorful or unusual ever happens in my life. I just plug along, cooking three meals a day, seeing the kids get off to school on time, darning socks . . . or I go back and forth to the office, keeping the books, running errands, living like a rusty old machine instead of a human being."

Yes, I know—there doesn't seem to be much fireworks in a program like that. But, actually, that program is the most important thing in this mad, perverted world. That program is keeping sanity and decency from being wiped out forever. It is more than "a stupid job." It's the vision which is holding men steady through a nightmare—the symbol of all that is sane and sweet and enduring.

The old world is passing, yes. The old standards of friendliness and fair play, honor and generosity, seem doomed. Lawmakers can't save us from that doom. Munitions-makers can't save us. Nor diplomats, nor war, itself.

You are the only one who can save civilization from greed and hate. And that's your job today!

You, alone, by your sane and simple living, tortured men remembering the beauty and comfort of home fires, kept burning . . . the pride of a decent job well done . . . the dignity of honest service to your fellow men.

Europe, and all it meant, is in flames. But each kindly gesture you make offsets brutality somewhere. Each hour of patient control and gentle reasoning, balances some beastly blitzkrieg. Into your work-worn hands, God's dream has been given, to save from the Powers of Darkness. You are His agent in these awful hours.

Ben Laughs Last.

Ben Turpin, at whose crossed eyes the world laughed for more than 30 years, is dead. But then laughter itself is dead over most of the world.

They laughed at Ben in the old Sam T. Jack's burlesque theater on Madison Street in the days when Edison's kinetoscope was still a scientific curiosity. They laughed at Ben in vaudeville in the days when vaudeville was still a thriving institution. They laughed at him in the medicine shows in the days when the medicine show brought flesh and blood entertainment to the sticks. They rolled in the aisles when Ben rolled his strangely twisted eyes.

But it wasn't until he got into the movies by way of Chicago's Essanay Studios and achieved a world-wide audience that the world really appreciated how funny he was. Ben didn't have to do anything or say anything to put the world in stitches—one glimpse of those aberrant orbs and the world howled.

But Ben got the last laugh. In recent months he must have laughed continually at the effrontery of a cockeyed world that dared call Ben Turpin cockeyed. —The Chicago News.

Summary of Week's Happenings

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT confided a history-making decision this week, but he confided it to just one man—and that man wasn't talking.

The decision: Whether the President would be a candidate for third term nomination.

The man: Postmaster General James A. Farley, national Democratic chairman.

"General Jim," told reporters: I had a very satisfactory talk with the president, and I have full knowledge of his thoughts and what he has in mind."

Any more, he said, would have to come from the president.

"Everyone wants to read the last chapter of the book first," he quipped.

But the president dodged the question too.

How About the Others?

So, if Mr. Roosevelt doesn't run, who will?

Farley? He has 38½ votes pledged to him but won't say what he's going to do about it. (The President has 773½, needs but 548 to be nominated.)

Vice President Garner? He can count on 49½.

Speaker Bankhead? Senator Tydings? Senator Wheeler? Senator O'Mahoney? Secretary of State Hull?

E. B. Germany, Garner's campaign co-chairman, clattered into a Chicago hotel lobby on horseback, whooped that Garner was in the race to stay.

Wheeler, who had said he would run whether the president did or not, changed his mind. He said he would not be a party to a "stop Roosevelt" movement.

Who For Vice President?

Of several possibilities for Vice President, only Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri and Secretary Hull had definite followings.

The Stark club of Chicago said Gov. John E. Miles of New Mexico and former Gov. Teller Amons of Colorado "declared themselves" for Stark, who crusaded against the Pendergast machine of Kansas City.

Friends of Secretary Hull said he had rather keep his present job but would run if drafted.

Garner followers said he "wasn't interested" in staying on as No. 2 man.

Will Endorse New Deal.

As to platform:

First of all, of course, it will endorse the New Deal and all its works.

After that, the most likely item will be a strong stand on the Monroe Doctrine—possibly citing specific incidents, such as the case of the French warships at Martinique.

There may also be a statement on military conscription.

The women's division of the national committee wants a strong plank on social legislation.

Whatever is in the platform, Chairman Farley hopes it will be short:

"The shorter the better. The people will read a short one and not a long one—and maybe Republican papers will print it."

People

Upper Crust Rookies.

Several extremely prominent people made news all at the same place this week. They enrolled at Plattsburg, N. Y., for a civilian military training course.

Among the big shots:

Winthrop Rockefeller, son of John D. Rockefeller, jr. (He drew "kitchen police" duty the first day.)

Newbold Morris, president of the New York City council.

John Hay Whitney, sportsman.

Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson.

Michael J. Phipps, polo star.

The recruits, ranging from 25 to 50 in age, were complimented by the post medical officer, Lt-Col. F. T. Chamberlin.

"They're fit," said the colonel. "They exercise more now than the business man did 25 years ago. The bulging tummies are rare, but even these will disappear after a month at this camp."

In Washington congress was considering a compulsory military training bill.

At Home

More For Munitions.

President Roosevelt asked congress this week for nearly $5,000,000,000 more for defense—bringing the total to a peacetime record of about $10,000,000,000.

"We, the free men and women of the United States are determined to be strong as well as free," he declared, then pledged:

"We will not send our men to take part in European wars."

On the same day, the senate approved a house bill authorizing a 70 per cent increase in the navy—a start on a "two ocean" fleet—but Chairman Walsh of the naval committee said it could not be completed before 1946.

If congress approves the new appropriation, the president said it will help pay for:

1. A navy able to meet "any possible combination."
2. Equipment for a 1,200,000-man army.
3. Equipment for 800,000 reserves.
4. Manufacturing facilities.
5. An additional 15,000 planes for the army, 4,000 for the navy.

The senate approved the appointments of Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war and Col. Frank Knox as secretary of navy.

Both had been criticized by certain senators as in favor of giving aid to the Allies.

(Harry Woodring, who resigned the war post, said in a speech, "I have always been . . . a non-interventionist . . . I regret that I had only one set of guts to sacrifice on the altar of public service.")

Easy On Russia.

The American Youth congress this week made news by what it did not do. It refused to accept:

1. A resolution condemning "political dictorship" in Russia, and
2. Gene Tunney.

Tunney shepherded a "Pro-American" group to the convention, at Lake Geneva, Wis. The Pro-Americans were denied seats for "technical reasons." Promptly Tunney announced plans for a new "anti-Communist" youth organization.

Abroad

Death of a democracy . . . A German victory gave birth to the Third French Republic nearly 70 years ago.

Another one has just killed it.

When the Prussian war machine under Bismarck smashed Napoleon III in 1871, the decayed regime crumbled. The new government revived the motto proclaimed at the foot of the guillotine by the First Republic in the immortal French Revolution:

"Liberty, Equality, Fraternity."

(The Second Republic lasted from 1848 to 1851, ended when Louis Napoleon, elected president, proclaimed himself Emperor Napoleon III.)

This week, shattered France tumbled toward the same refuge that Germany chose after the humiliation of the World War—Totalitarianism.

Parliament voted Premier Henri Petain's government the power to write a new constitution, then create its own assembly to ratify it.

The government made a statement:

"Firmness will be the law . . . only one aristocracy will be recognized: that of intelligence; only one merit: work."

A not very subtle threat to labor unions; all other interests will be subordinated "to the general interest."

The French press described the upcoming constitution as "corporative." This is the term Fascists use to describe the regime of Premier Mussolini of Italy. This, and Petain's admiration for Generalissimo Franco, chief of the Fascist Spanish state, indicate the new government will be along Mussolini-Franco lines rather than the Hitler style.

What does all this mean?

Dewitt Mackenzie, AP foreign commentator, writes:

"The French government in recent years has been in disfavor with the general public . . . people felt that the government was merely drifting. Then came the Hitlerian earthquake . . . Now the people are ready to try a Fascist dictatorship to see if it won't prove more efficient and pull things together."

How Long Will It Last?

However, Mackenzie says: "I will predict that no dictatorship will live long in France. 'Liberte' is bred in the bones of the Frenchman."

One man whose shadow fell across developments was the gaunt, bearded Duke of Guise, who claims he is king of France. He is descendent of Louis Philippe, last French king before the republic.

Britannia Rules . . .

British battleships, floating outposts of empire, mopped up the French navy this week, then tangled with the Italian.

With surrender of a French flotilla anchored at Alexandria, Egypt, the British claimed to have captured, destroyed or disabled two-thirds of their former ally's fleet.

Their idea was to keep the ships from being used against them by Germany.

Four capital ships had been destroyed in an attack off Mers El-Kebir, Algeria, and a fifth, the new Richelieu, was put out of commission by a daring torpedo motorboat crew at Dakar, French West Africa.

A. V. Alexander, first lord of the Admiralty, said three other capital ships had been "accounted for" in other actions.

Meanwhile, a British squadron blockaded several vessels including France's only aircraft carrier, the Bearn, in Fort de France, Martinique, in the Caribbean Sea.

(Martinique is in the Pan-American neutrality zone, and a battle would pose a Monroe Doctrine problem. Washington was alert, and mine fields at both ends of the Panama Canal were extended.)

Wednesday began a round of engagements between the British and Italian fleets in the Mediterranean. Actual smoke screens obscured the conflicts and communique smoke screens obscured the results.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T FOLLOW A RULE

Rules about returning your partner's suit, playing second hand low, third hand high and not finessing against your partner are all right as far as they go. They should be working tools which you use whenever they help you to accomplish your purpose. But no rule should be followed blindly on all occasions, any more than a carpenter would always use one particular kind of plane, or saw without first thinking of whether it fitted the job at hand.

	♠ 10 8 4 3 ♥ K 5 ♦ A 9 8 4 ♣ K 4 2
♠ 9 7 ♥ Q J 8 7 4 2 ♦ K Q 2 ♣ 9 8	W. N. E. S.	♠ K 5 ♥ A 3 ♦ 7 5 3 ♣ Q J 10 6 5 3
	♠ A Q J 6 2 ♥ 10 9 6 ♦ J 10 6 ♣ A 7

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	1 ♠
2 ♥	2 ♠	3 ♣	Pass
3 ♥	3 ♠	4 ♥	4 ♠

A double might have given North and South a better score than making their own game, a much better one, certainly, than what they actually got when South fumbled his contract.

When West led his heart Q, South could have figured out the correct play by simple card reading, but didn't. It was pretty sure from the lead that East held the heart A, and from West's rebid of a weak suit it was very likely he had six and East only two. South went wrong, however. He reckoned that covered the Q with dummy's K would force the ace and thus make his own 10 a third-round trick.

So the declarer called the heart K from dummy. East took with the A, fired his 3 back to the J and on a third heart over-ruffed the dummy's 10 with his K. Since South had to lose a diamond later, he was set one trick.

If South had played low from dummy on the first trick, West would have won it. East would have taken the second heart with his A, but then could not have got West into the lead again until the defensive trumps were gone. As a consequence the spade K would have been disposed of in a winning finesse, and the declarer would have lost only a total of three tricks, two in hearts and one in diamonds.

Your Week-End Lesson.

Playing a 3-No Trumps contract, with plenty of entries to both your own hand and dummy, and amply safe stoppers of the other suits, which of the following suits should ordinarily be preferred in the effort to take as many total tricks as possible, if your choice was between some two of them?

Declarer	Dummy
1. A K Q 4	7 6 3 2
2. A K Q 4	7 6 3
3. A K Q 9	7 6 3
4. A K Q 4 2	7 6 3

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

There have been a number of times in my life when, through an experience of my own, I have comprehended the sensations of a woman sentenced to death, and reprieved just a few minutes before execution. But I think never have I realized what an unexpected reprieve must mean to a condemned person as I did when Lillian's fingers prodded into my shoulders with the Morse letters, "the catbird call."

For I saw suddenly, clearly, how I could save Dicky from walking into the ambush which Leslie's chauffeur must even now be preparing for him. The man could not understand why Leslie did not come out of the thicket of underbrush which he had entered in order to watch unobserved the exchange of the box containing Queen Olga's emeralds, for of course he had no suspicion that Lillian and I had been first in that thicket and that we were holding Leslie prisoner there at pistol point. But he knew that Dicky was an enemy coming straight toward his hiding place. I knew what short shrift my husband would have if he reached it, yet I dared not call out to warn him for fear the answer would be a bullet from the chauffeur's revolver aimed at his heart.

I knew, however, that Dicky would recognize the catbird call when I should give it, for since our coming to the farm many years ago we have found great amusement in identifying many birds which find sanctuary there. And when Dicky discovered that I had a certain facility in imitating their calls, he gave me no rest until I experimented with a crude form of ventriloquism, and found that I was able to "throw" the call a short distance away.

But my limited skill has been of use to us in one or two emergencies, because the people whom we wished to deceive as to our presence near them were not familiar with real bird calls. What Leslie's knowledge of the subject was I did not know, did not dare to think. Leslie was watching Dicky with a gloating anticipatory look in his eyes and was paying no attention to the begrimed man he supposed me to be. It was a heaven-sent opportunity, and I seized it frantically. With every bit of skill I possessed, I "threw" my voice, and sent an imitation of a catbird's call into the air, adding a special note which I long ago interpolated as a signal and which I knew my husband would recognize instantly.

I admired his poise as he took another step before pausing in just the attitude of a man interested in birds, who hears one call unexpectedly. Then he stopped, turned toward the thicket leisurely.

"My word! A catbird!" he said as if to himself. "I didn't know they stayed north this late. This sure calls for a little sleuthing."

He walked stealthily toward the thicket, as if he were afraid the bird might take flight. I looked fearfully past him at the entrance to the wood road where Leslie's car, and further back, our own station wagon were hidden, and saw the chauffeur cautiously poke his head out, and guessed that his body would instantly follow when he saw that Dicky was headed for his master's hiding place.

If Dicky would only keep his eyes fixed on the thicket, and if he would only hurry, and not look around! The next second my wishes were fulfilled, for my husband's movements are deceptive in their apparent slowness, but real swiftness. He parted the bushes and entered the thicket, the bushes closing after him—and forgot to don his famed "poker face" when he saw the tableau of Jack Leslie with hands upraised and our small pistols pointed at him.

FOREST FURY

By OREN ARNOLD

(Copyright 1940)

CHAPTER XXVI

"Yes! The Columbia professor I mentioned. A close friend of mine. Rosemary, he would be glad to look in on Jack for you. He would give Jack's attorney, this Olmstead, every assistance possible, if I ask it. And you are right in your feeling that you need not go back there. There is no obligation to go. I deduce from your statements, so it would be wiser, I believe, to do what you can for the wayward brother at long range."

"Oh."

"Yes. And Rosemary, you must not feel any sense of shame at all. Even if Jack is guilty it is no reflection on you. None whatsoever."

She looked into his eyes then for a long moment. They were very near, and her own eyes were a little misty from emotion.

"Monty Montgomery," she cried, "you may be a professor of archaeology and a highbrow scientist every way, but you are the sweetest somebody I ever knew! Honest you are. I've never had a friend like you before."

"Oh I say—!"

"You are! I—well you have helped me immensely. I hadn't the faintest idea what to do, and you came along with a wrench in your hand and solved two of my problems."

* * *

She smiled a little in conclusion, and stood up from the log. Together, then, they started walking back toward the trading post. They didn't say much en route. But Rosemary did a lot of thinking. The footpath there was narrow and so they automatically slipped into single file, she following.

As she walked she noted that Monty's form, while slender, was sturdy and erect. He was not a big man, nor was he small. He was a good four inches taller than she, maybe even more. His shoulders somehow looked broader than she had realized.

"Do you play games, Monty?" she asked, quite unexpectedly.

"I beg pardon?"

"Games. Tennis and golf and badminton, or anything."

"Why, yes. Some. I particularly like to swim. And I am not utterly helpless at tennis. Why? Are you planning—?"

"No. I just asked."

"We could build a tennis court," he suggested.

"Maybe so. Sometime. You walk gracefully."

"Swimming keeps one supple. But there is limited opportunity out here. The lake, and—"

She actually laughed then. "Sue and I intend to swim in my drinking water. You can too, I guess. Come on with us sometime. Anyway it's filtered."

* * *

The conversation was lighter and so was the emotional strain on each of them by the time they came within sight of the big log store again. The welcome letup gave Rosemary a chance to think more calmly.

One salient fact had come forcefully to her mind—that Dr. Archie Montgomery might not cut such a romantic figure in a western saddle, but he had a brilliant, practical mind in business and other things concerning his own—and her own—city life.

"And after all," she whispered to herself there while walking, "people don't ride horses down Broadway."

She might have thought more about it if she hadn't seen handsome Bob King standing on her front porch.

"Hiya, Toots!" Bob King hailed Rosemary, grinning broadly and lifting his stiff military hat. He seemed to ignore Monty entirely, though. "I came to tell you about our fire yesterday."

"Hello, Bob." She spoke rather soberly.

"What's all the excavation? Found a gold mine in the front yard?"

"That's for our new gasoline pump. The—tank—goes under there, in the hole. Isn't that it, Monty?"

"Yes." Monty nodded too.

"Phooey!" Bob frowned. "Another good store gone modern. Oh well."

"We shall keep the outward appearance rustic," Monty explained. "These logs are to build a small stockade housing, you see? Quite in keeping with the architecture of the store."

"Double phooey."

"I beg pardon?"

Bob laughed. He liked to take sly digs at Monty Montgomery, especially at Monty's somewhat slow and precise speech. He did it often, but the others dismissed it as good-natured fun. He was about to mention yesterday's forest fire again when her expression distracted him.

"Say, Toots," Bob looked closely at Rosemary's face now, "you been crying?"

She nodded slightly, avoiding his eyes.

"Yeah? Well! I thought I was joking, but you really have been, eh? What about? The professor here insult you or something?"

"Certainly not, Bob! I—I just came onto Monty—he was repairing the pump."

"Why all the bellering, then? Lost your dog or something?"

* * *

She didn't answer that. She devoted herself to tidying her hair, pushing rebellious curls back under the peasant-style handkerchief around her head. The frowning worried expression still clung to her face and Monty made a gesture as if to ask Bob not to tease.

"Come on, blurt it out to papa!" Bob grinned again. "If somebody's broken the little girl's dolly, papa spank!"

"Please don't, Bob."

"Don't what? Don't razz you? So you can't take it, eh? Crybaby cry! Crybaby cry!"

Sue McKee had come out of the trading post when she heard the talking, and when Bob concluded his last attack with a loud laugh, Sue walked around to look at Rosemary herself. All at once Sue discovered that Rosemary really was unhappy, and she turned to Bob with a quick flash of anger.

"Bob, for goodness sake, don't be a boor!" Sue ordered. But then—Sue McKee's own manner changed. As if instantly regretful of her quick command, she turned back to Bob and smiled. "It's not a time to play big-brother-tease, maybe; don't you see? Now run off and fight forest fires somewhere, there's a good boy."

It was as if Sue had been the mother of these children, had stepped in tactfully to comfort one and reprimand the other, then had adroitly smiled at all of them and put them at ease again. A strained situation was passed off quickly there.

There was some more talk. Bob, still gay, said that he did in truth have to get on. The forest patrol work was exacting this time of year. Tourists had taken to camping more and more in the majestic trees on the north side of the highway and at Lookout Point, he said, because there was abundant shade and no annoying underbrush along there. The thick dry carpet of leaves made a tremendous fire hazard. A blaze could go racing.

Sue nodded. She understood thoroughly. Fire was a dominant consideration in her life too. Rosemary asked a question or two, pleased to see the trend of conversation diverted. Her pretty face was still a bit pale, still showing the inward strain she felt, and she realized that a dab of rouge and lipstick would come in well just now. She was glad that attention had shifted from her.

Dr. Montgomery had remained quiet in the background—a habit he had around more ebullient companions—but when Bob King departed in his Forest Service car, Monty spoke.

"Wouldn't you like to go and rest a while, Rosemary?" he suggested, gently. "You have had considerable emotional strain. And—ah, Rosemary, you must not—not feel that Bob is—"

Record Still Clean

Hermans Beat Sycamore For 9th Straight; Play Silers Sunday.

WITH nine straight softball triumphs safely tucked away, the Sons of Herman place their record on the block Sunday when they engage the Ashland Siler Hatchery club in a twin bill at Liberty park.

Manager Frank Beeber is expected to send Fred Carver against the Ashlanders in the first game at 2 p. m. and will use Jimmy Fullager in the nightcap

* * *

Fullager stepped to the hill at Sycamore yesterday and held the Sycamore All-Stars to three hits as the Hermans marked up a thrilling 5 to 3 victory.

* * *

The Herman combine got off to an early start, but Fullager ran into trouble in the ninth when the losers scored all their runs. Until that inning Fullager had hurled hitless ball.

Two walks, a single by Jim Stout and George Beery's long fly gave the Hermans two runs in the first and the club climaxed its scoring with three tallies in the second.

After two were out, Carver singled and Fullager walked. Frank Balbaugh collected a double scoring both runners and Foreman punched out a single, sending Balbaugh home.

Meanwhile, Fullager was just breezing along. Not a Sycamore player reached first until the ninth. In that stanza a single and two triples gave the losers three markers.

* * *

Fullager had good control, walking only one man while fanning four. His mound opponent, Klingenbarger gave up four walks and whiffed the same number. Balbaugh led the Hermans at the plate with a double and single.

Redleg Fans Whoop It Up

Rhinelanders Want Kayo Put on Crumbling Dodgers.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Rhinelanders whooped it up for the Reds to run their string of double header victories to five straight and break a National league record today—but most of all to put their crumbling kayo on the Dodgers

A twin triumph over Brooklyn would not win the National league pennant for Cincinnati, but fans felt that smashing Brooklyn would put them over the hump with a clear road ahead.

They pinned their hopes on Paul Derringer and Junior Thompson to leminate the Dodgers, who have driven the Cincinnati club out of first place seven times this year

Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers depended on Curt Davis, his top flight hurler acquired from St. Louis, and Tex Carleton of no-hit fame to stem the Reds advance.

Peewee Reese will be replaced at shortstop by Durocher, himself, and Charley Gilbert will take the rightfield spot of Joe Vosmik. Gilbert will play in centerfield with Dixie Walker, regular centerfielder, going to right.

Babe Phelps will hit in fourth place instead of Ducky Medwick and Cookie Lavagetto has been dropped from second to seventh place in the batting order.

BILL MORITZ

Moritz Hurls and Bats W. B. Union To 10-8 Win In Club Softball Loop

W. B. UNION'S softball combination, with Bill Moritz on the mound, got a share of the top position in the Y. M. C. A. Club league yesterday by handing the Schoolmasters a 10 to 8 defeat, their first in the league this season

As a result of last night's upset at Blue Goose diamond, the Union lads and the Schoolmasters have identical percentage points, each having won three and lost one.

* * *

The W. B. Union jumped into the lead in the third inning with a five run rally and never relinquished its advantage for the remainder of the tiff. The Schoolmasters threatened once in the fourth when they brought their heavy artillery into action and pushed over four runs.

* * *

Baumgardner, Schoolmaster rightfielder led both clubs in hitting by getting three hits out of five trips to the plate Baumgardner got a triple, a double, and a single.

* * *

Moritz, W. B. Unions hurler, and Valentine, W. B. Union catcher, also secured a share of the spotlight. Moritz got a triple and a double out of four trips to the batter's box, while Valentine managed a triple and a single. McCullough was on the mound for the Schoolmasters.

* * *

Results in the other Club league games played last night were Phalanx Fraternity 20, Catholic Foresters 11 and Junior Association of Commerce 16, Elks club 14. The box score for the Summit Fast Freight and Ohio Public Service tilt was not turned in.

There's No Substitute for Speed In Winning Contests

By BILL WHITE
Associated Press Sports Writer.

THERE just doesn't seem to be any substitute for speed.

* * *

Take the three games played in the major leagues yesterday and last night. In each one, a pitcher with a burning, blistering fast ball emerged the hero.

* * *

Bobby Feller, whose fast ball in a night game is harder to see than a black cat in a coal mine, came through with his 14th triumph of the season—a splendidly pitched one-hitter that blanked the Athletics, 1-0

The Phils' Hugh Mulcahy, who, like Feller is a righthander, was slightly less sensational but almost as effective in scattering seven hits to beat the Pirates 6-3

And the Cubs' Vern Olsen, a portsider with a nice touch of lightning in his Sunday delivery had the Boston Bees hanging on the ropes as he mixed his high, hard one with his "sinker ball." They touched him for only five safeties in absorbing a 2-0 shellacking.

Of the three, Feller's performance was by far the finest. He lost his chance for his second no-hitter of the season when Dick (the villain) Siebert punched out a clean single in the eighth inning. Bobby, in keeping the Indians on top of the American league, walked only two batters while striking out 13

Johnny Babich Feller's foe, held Cleveland to six hits with a creditable performance Ben Chapman and Lou Boudreau socked successive doubles in the third for the run that spelled victory.

* * *

The triumph increased the Indians' lead to one full game over the idle Detroit Tigers.

All other games in both leagues were rained out.

Radoumis Gives Up Six Bingles; Indians Win, 1-0

Mansfield Pitcher Hurls Shutout to Triumph, 18 to 0; Club on Road.

By CHARLES MARTIN

UNLIMBERING their heavy artillery with devastating results, the Mansfield Braves swamped Eostoria, 18 to 0, under the floodlights at the Fairground last night before some 300 shivering spectators.

It was the second time this season the Braves have collected 18 runs against the Red Birds at the Fair park in an Ohio State league game and as in the previous contest, Mansfield again pounded out 21 hits.

* * *

While the Braves were romping around the bases in practically every inning, Alex Radoumis celebrated his 19th birthday by scattering six hits to the Red Birds to register his fourth win of the year.

* * *

Not once during the contest did a Fostoria player advance beyond second base and Radoumis showed Manager Dewey Stover he was ready to take his regular turn on the hill

Mansfield waited until the second inning before it bombarded Sonny Moore. Fostoria's top hurler, from the mound with a 10-run attack.

The Braves trek to Fremont tonight and will invade Findlay for a doubleheader Sunday. Bob Arnold will be Stover's selection to toe the rubber tonight with Tony Angaran and George Laurila working in the twin bill.

The Warriors return to the Fairground to meet Fremont at 8.30 p. m. Monday before an "Eagles Lodge" night crowd.

Led by Stover and Missler, the Braves collected markers in every inning but the first, third and fifth.

Fostoria sent Keller in to replace Moore in the second and he gave up a run in the fourth, three in the sixth, a like number in the seventh and two in the eighth.

It was Radoumis' most impressive win of the year. In three frames a Fostoria man reached second. An error and a walk put Perrone on the middle sack in the fourth.

In the fifth, Spalick, who secured two hits off Radoumis, doubled, but he was stranded when the Mansfield hurler bore down and retired the side in order. Again in the seventh two hits placed Brock on the keystone sack, but he didn't advance.

Alex had excellent control and allowed one Fostoria man to reach first on a walk He struck out seven. Stover and Missler had a double and three singles apiece. The only Brave who didn't secure a hit was Herb Woodten. Radoumis, Dick Morse and Gene Woodling added three hits each to the attack

Janet Shock Annexes Ohio Women's Golf Championship

By JOHN FRYE

CINCINNATI — (AP) — This story about Janet Shock of Dayton winning the Ohio women's golf crown for the second time in three years is for those who believe in things like rabbits' feet and new moons.

* * *

There's no doubt among serious-minded folk that she won because she outlasted Dorothy Gardner of Steubenville in the longest finals match of the 21-year history of the tournament She took it, one up on the 39th.

* * *

But her sandy-haired caddy, Larry Acomb, firmly believes that the two are so close together as pin-shooters that a little something extra was needed and he supplied it.

Standing at the caddy house after yesterday's display over the wet Losantiville course, he contentedly chewed the stem of a four-leaf clover.

"I picked it up on the 16th green of the last round," he said. "Look at your card and see if that wasn't when Janet started winnin' this thing."

Larry called it. Janet was two down coming up to that 200-yard par three 34th hole. She had lost the 32nd and halved the 33rd, and the Gardner fans in the gallery of 700 began to collect bets

Dorothy, 21-year-old Smith college graduate, seemed to be on the way to a title on her first trip into the finals.

But she got into a trap for a four and Janet took it in three Although they halved the next, the tide had turned and Dorothy hooked under the trees, shot out into a trap, and added up to six on the 36th while Janet calmly knocked in a five on the par-four, 420 yard hole to send them both back to the first tee for overtime.

Dorothy was on the 37th green in two, but just barely missed a 15-foot putt while Janet chipped her ball to the pin and it bounced less than a foot. They halved it with four.

* * *

Each took a five on the 38th, and Janet landed on the green of the 199-yard, par three 39th in one and took two putts to get in. Dorothy drove into a trap on the edge of the green, blasted out with one of the best shots of the game, but missed a five-footer and Larry's four-leaf clover had paid out.

* * *

Dorothy said she'd be "in there pitchin'" in next year's meet on the Akron Portage course.

Urbana Horse Thrills Fans

Modern Boy Captures First Heat of $4.000 Trot.

TOLEDO —(AP)— Frisky Modern Boy and his famed owner-driver, H. M. (Doc.) Parshall of Urbana, O., turned out to be an unbeatable, thrill-producing combination as grand circuit's harness race meeting at Fort Miami track closed last night.

* * *

The bay colt easily captured the first heat of the $1,000 three-year-old trot, then broke at the barrier and got off to a bad start in the second.

Ninth in a field of 10 at the quarter mark, Modern Boy pulled even with Hedy Hanover as they entered the back stretch and then Parshall drove his entry to the finish line to win by a neck. Winning heat times were 2:07½ and 2:08

Winning straight heats in 2:05½ and 2:05¼, Balkan Hanover claimed top money in the featured trotting club stake, carrying a purse of $1,980. Whitney Dennison piloted the bay horse, owned by Biery Farms of Butler, Pa

Jonnie Hal took straight heats in the $1,500 chamber of commerce pace in times of 2:04¼ and 2:03¼.

* * *

After Modern Maiden finished first in the opening heat of the 18 class pace, Betty Scott, a black mare driven by Al Clark, stepped the distance in 2:07 and 2:08 to win the next two heats and the victor's share of the $500 purse.

* * *

In the 15 class pace, Sep Palm drove Miss Princess Laurel across the finish line ahead of the field in the second and third heats The black mare was clocked in 2:02¼ and 2:03½. Brady Hanover, bay horse driven by Parshall, won the first heat of the $500 race in 2:05¼.

Blues Strike 'Hot Streak'

Kansas City Wins 8 Tilts Out of Last Nine.

(By Associated Press)

Kansas City couldn't have picked a better time to hit a "hot streak" in the American association race.

All season the Blues have been dogged by a persistent Minneapolis slugging crew and shortly before the current eastern road trip began the Millers ousted the champions from the top rung.

But once the invasion started the Millers fell apart in their worst slump of the season while the Blues mowed down everything in sight. So far, Kansas City has won eight of nine games on the road jaunt while Minneapolis has lost eight of 10 games which gives the Blues a six and a half game lead at the present writing.

Kansas City won its eighth game last night on Charles Wensloff's seven-hit pitching against Indianapolis, 6 to 1.

Minneapolis was defeated twice last night by Columbus which racked up its sixth and seventh straight wins 2 to 1, and 4 to 2. Ernie White topped old Walter Tauscher in the close one and Tom Sunkel accounted for the second triumph despite walking nine batters.

* * *

Louisville ran its string to six by defeating Milwaukee twice, by identical scores, 2-0, making eight losses straight for the Brewers.

Toledo defeated St. Paul 2 to 0 spoiling on Joe Dwyer's first homer of the season.

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

On a recent trip to the Charles Mill Waterways, newly opened mecca for fishermen, several decidedly unsportsmanlike actions were observed. In one instance a slightly undersized bass was yanked angrily off a hook and thrown back (it would have been a keeper next year). At several places along the shore, where boats had landed, were found blue gills, crappies, bull heads, etc., which, while within legal limits, were tossed aside as not worth keeping (they should have been left alive in the water). Every real sportsman and sportswoman will observe all the state laws, as well as those unwritten rules that tend to conserve and protect the grand sport of fishing for future as well as present anglers.

If he is surprised so quickly that there is no time for nervous excitement, he will strike without sounding his famous, yet ominous warning.

PAM—That F.B.I. Assignment! By A. W. Brewerton

ANOTHER F.B.I. MAN IS TALKING TO GORDON!
HI, DAVE—SAY, THE CHIEF SAYS YOU'RE NOT GOING WITH US ON THIS JOB/WISH YOU WERE!—WE NEED YOU
I—FEEL LIKE A TRAITOR, BILL—BUT I—JUST CAN'T MAKE IT—THIS TIME,
CHIEF SEEMS PRETTY CUT UP—ABOUT YOUR NOT GOING—BUT—DAVE, I KNOW YOU WELL ENOUGH TO REALIZE YOU'VE A VERY GOOD REASON FOR YOUR ACTION!
THANKS, BILL—I HAVE!—BUT I KNOW, TOO, HOW DESPERATE THIS SITUATION IS AND—I'M AFRAID THE CHIEF THINKS I'M LYING DOWN ON HIM!
IT WAS CERTAINLY SWELL OF THAT BLIND GIRL TO COME HERE AND HELP ME OUT!—GOODNESS—SHE DID MORE IN A FEW MINUTES TO GIVE ME AN IDEA OF HOW HE WANTS THINGS DONE THAN HE'S BEEN ABLE TO TELL ME IN A WEEK!
BLESS HER HEART!—TO THINK SHE'D EVEN THINK ABOUT ME, AND MY PETTY TROUBLES IN HER TRAGIC CONDITION!—I WAS ABOUT TO GO CRAZY WITH THAT DUMB GIRL BALLING THINGS UP—AND PAMELA COMES IN AND STRAIGHTENS THINGS OUT IN A JIFFY!—THE DEAR CHILD—AND I—I—AM REALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR HER—BEING BLIND!
THE POOR OLD COLONEL'S CONSCIENCE IS STILL TROUBLING HIM A LOT!

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES SLOW SELLING PACE

Small Fractional Gains Crop Up Here and There; Session Extremely Sluggish.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market continued as a slow-motion picture today, with lack of speculative interest in virtually all departments.

While small fractional gains cropped up here and there, numerous leaders were unchanged to down a shade at the start of the final hour. The session was one of the most sluggish in more than a year.

The few traders who appeared in boardrooms spent their time mainly in guessing as to what may happen at the Democratic convention next week and in arguments regarding possible market repercussions if and when Hitler touches off a major smash at England. Business news, including defense spending prospects, still provided the principal market prop, brokers said.

NEED APPROVAL ON GUARD CALL

President Would Mobilize 50,000 Guardsmen For Active Training. .

At present, national guardsmen are obligated by the terms of their enlistment to drill one evening a week, to spend two weeks annually in training camps, to serve in any emergency designated as such by the governors of their states, or in any national emergency so designated by the president. They come from every walk of life and the great majority are steadily employed, some in highly responsible jobs such as the member's of New York's "Old Seventh" regiment which is made up of society men.

Early's announcement came after Mr. Roosevelt revealed that he was considering proposals to order out the guard in full strength—230,000 men. The decision to call out 50,000 guardsmen—to be drawn from 13 states—came after a conference between Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson.

It followed by only a few hours, testimony before the senate military affairs committee by Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, that the entire militia should be mobilized "right now" and that some form of compulsory military training is "immediately essential."

RUSSIA WOULD LIKE TO HELP CHINA'S CAUSE

Writer Says Action Depends on Great Britain and United States.

Editor's Note: Here is the second of two uncensored dispatches on Russia, filed from Tokyo by Peter C. Rhodes, United Press staff correspondent.

By PETER C. RHODES

TOKYO—Russia regards China's fight against the Japanese as a "just war" and is intensively strengthening her military and naval forces in the Far East.

In line with that attitude the Soviets have massed strong forces in the maritime provinces of Siberia and are working night and day to build up the region's population and industry. It has all the aspects of western United States in the boom days of Westward Ho.

The question I was asked most frequently on a trip across the Soviet Union was:

"Will the United States enter the war and will she decide to give open aid to China as the first step in her national defense?"

Despite Russia's sympathy and interest in the Chinese cause it was my impression that if the United States and Great Britain abandon all aid to the Chinese, the Soviets may swiftly seek to conclude a non-aggression pact with Japan.

The object of that would be to divert Japan away from the interior of Asia toward the south Pacific and to free Russia of the possibility of simultaneous involvement in Europe and the Far East.

Meantime, the Soviet Union is making a major effort to strengthen her far eastern position.

Conditions, surprisingly, seemed better in Siberia than in old Russia. Many of the new towns have large factories and I saw building activities going forward in Sverdlovsk, Novosibirsk, Irkutsk, Chita, Birobidjan, Harabosk and Vladivostock.

Traffic is so heavy on the trans-Siberian that the roadbed is suffering. We passed many gangs of maintenance workers.

I saw more than 20 trains of 60 cars each loaded with trucks, tanks, artillery and ambulances heading for the martime provinces of eastern Siberia.
